The job should be done after we perform necessary operations on the dataset as these operations have been thought-out and designed to realize the full potential of the data gathered.

Some problems may arise in case the data is insufficient or unreliable or maybe the operations require a lot of time to process the data. It is hard for me to comment upon whether these operations will be sufficient or not.